3 Stages in the Formation of the Gospels

The life and teaching of Jesus: Jesus' actual words and deeds. The oral tradition: After the ascension, the apostles with fuller understanding handed it on.

The written Gospels: The sacred authors took certain of the many elements which had been handed on, at times explaining or synthesizing in light of the situation of the churches.

The Church as House of God

To enter the house of God, we must cross a threshold, which symbolizes passing from the world wounded by sin to the world of the new Life to which men are called. The visible church is a symbol of the Father's house toward which the People of God is journeying and where the Father "will wipe every tear from their eyes."

Pentecost

The biblical narrative of Pentecost is given in the second chapter of the Book of Acts. In his sermon Peter quotes Joel 2:28-32 and Psalm 16 to indicate that first Pentecost marks the start of the Messianic Age. About one hundred and twenty followers of Christ (Acts 1:15) were present, including the Twelve Apostles (Acts 1:13, 26), Jesus' mother Mary, other female disciples and his brothers (Acts 1:14). According to scripture, while those on whom the Spirit had descended were speaking in many languages, the Apostle Peter stood up with the eleven and proclaimed to the crowd that this event was the fulfillment of the prophecy. In Acts 2:17, it reads: "'And in the last days,' God says, 'I will pour out my spirit upon every sort of flesh, and your sons and your daughters will prophesy and your young men will see visions and your old men will dream dreams.'"

The Mission of the Church:

Message: The proclamation of the good news, the core of which is that Jesus who died is risen and now lives among us. Distinct from the teaching mission. Fellowship: The responsibility of Jesus' followers for a visible demonstration of what they are proclaiming in the message. The building of Christian community in the bond of faith, hope, and love. Service: The act of healing and reconciling, of binding up wounds and restoring health, with the example and power of Jesus.
