Lectionary

The “collection of readings” (Scripture), assigned by the Church for liturgical proclamation. The present one was introduced March 22, 1970, and revised in 1998. It consists of:

1. A three- year cycle of Sunday readings
2. A two-year weekday cycle
3. A one- year sanctoral cycle
4. A variety of other readings for various occasions
5. Responsorial psalms and alleluia verses

The Glory of Jesus

These experiences are apart from the exceptional and unique post-ascension appearance to Paul

- 1 Revealed—in the resurrection
2. Veiled—in the post-resurrection appearances
3. Exalted—in the ascension to the Father’s right hand

Rood screen

An ornamented altar screen, usually surmounted with a crucifix, separating the sanctuary from the body of the church. Properly, “rood” (rod) is the crucifixion cross (crucifix) which was originally enshrined on the stone or wooden screen. This came to be ornamented with saintly statuary and symbols

Obligations

Formerly, fast days consisted of all Lenten days except Sunday. Fast and abstinence days were Ash Wednesday, Lenten Fridays, and Saturdays, Ember Days, and the vigils of certain feasts. Current practice reflects the 1966 instructions of Pope Paul VI’s constitution Paenitemini in which:

1. The meaning of fasting was emphasized.
2. The obligation was restated.
3. The extent of the obligation was changed.
4. The universal fast and abstinence days, Ash Wednesday and Good Friday, were confirmed.
5. Some other act of penance should be followed on Fridays if abstinence from meat is not practiced.
6. Specific regulations were left to bishops in their Episcopal conferences.
