“No! No! It is a Sin!” by Fr. Richard J. Rego

Mortal Sin is Individual

The Congregation firmly responds that it is contrary to the teaching of the Church: “According to the Church’s teaching, mortal sin, which is opposed to God, does not consist only in the formal and direct resistance to the commandment of charity. It is equally to be found in this opposition to authentic love which is included in every deliberate transgression, in serious matters, of each of the moral laws...A person sins mortally not only when his actions comes from direct contempt for love of God and neighbor, but also when he consciously and freely, for whatever reason, chooses something which is seriously disordered.”

Mortal sin is individual. Pope John Paul II teaches that: “Care will have to be taken not to reduce mortal sin to an act of fundamental option-as is commonly said today-against God or neighbor. For mortal sin exists also when a person knowingly and willingly, for whatever reason, chooses something that is gravely disordered.”
