Reflection:

Jesus has never tired of serving men. Today he is still the most servant man of all. He himself told us: "I have not come to be served, but to serve." But from time to time He looked for quiet moments with His disciples.

Today is one of those days.

They have arrived at Simon's house, and he finds his mother-in-law ill. Jesus, not knowing how not to save another soul on that day, takes her by the hand and heals her. It seems that God, made man to serve, does not want to do otherwise. The all mighty; He is aware of human suffering; He who has loved the world so much, was he going to stay calm watching men get lost? No, they must be saved at all costs. That is why he is there, serving in the moments of greatest intimacy with his disciples. The mother-in-law learned the lesson of that day very well.
