Reflection:

Today I am sad and seeing how Jesus cries and laments. The Gospel text says that when he came close, seeing the city, he wept for it. And he wept and wailed aloud. And he saw the misfortune that happened to him and sobbed: "Woe to you ...!". Your cry, Jesus, shocks me. Will you cry a lot about my current life? Will you cry when you see me? Will I give you so much pain? ... But no, Jesus, I don't want to stay there. I want to know that you love me, that I enter your mercy, that I enter your love. And I want to be, as I said before, that humble little donkey. That it only serves for that, nothing more: it only serves to carry you. And that there, with those characteristics, simply, humbly, I can have you on me.

All today's text, with a beginning of a week of Passion, leads me to see you, to feel you, to love you, to understand you. How great you are, Lord! I imagine the scene, and I'm there ... and I see the crowd that praises, that shouts, with palms, the children ... And I see you, sad, heartbroken, lamenting, sobbing and saying: "What a shame! If they realized what is happening in their life ... What a shame! ". And you also look at me and say the same thing: "If you realized something ..., if you realized all the love I have for you, if you realized how I am working your life and how many thanks and how many moments and how many attitudes I am giving you and giving you! ". In this encounter we stay like this, thinking and meeting the gaze of Jesus: Jesus looks at Jerusalem, Jesus looks at me. And in silence, there, in the depth of love, we understand the cry of Jesus, the enormous love, and what he tells me: that I realize it, that I wake up, that I do not shout "Hosanna!" and after a while "Crucify him!" And that I can continually crucify him, with my words, with my gestures, with my actions.
