Reflection:

Who is the good shepherd?

Among Jesus' listeners, many had to be in charge of a herd of domestic animals, mainly sheep. This office was very frequent in Judea, typical of the simple people whom Jesus Christ addressed. Who is a good shepherd? Any of the listeners could list the most characteristic notes: he appreciates each sheep, cares about each one of them, takes good care of them ... The one, above all, who defends them from the snares and possible attacks of the wolves. For the good shepherd there are no sheep, the flock, but this specific sheep. Because each one is individual, unrepeatable, he cares about each one. If one goes astray, or breaks a leg, leave the 99 healthy sheep to look for the lost one. And when he finds her, he does not carry her to the fold with his sticks, but he lifts her up on his men, heals her if she is injured, and takes her to the fold along with the other sheep. This is the image of the Good Shepherd, and this is also the image of Christ.

"God so loved the world that he gave his only Son ...". Jesus Christ is the embodiment and manifestation of God's love. The greatness and omnipotence of God, at times, can make us believe in an immense, great God, in the style of the great gods of primitive peoples. We see a great God, but distant, too powerful for me, a simple creature. But that God has become incarnate, he has manifested himself to us in the adorable and real person of Jesus Christ. It is no longer a question of a distant God, but of a person who has lived among us, who has worked with human hands, has sweated and tired like any of us, has rejoiced with human joys (for example, in the wedding feast at Cana). And above all, as we have seen a few weeks ago, Jesus Christ has suffered, to an unthinkable extreme, hanging on the cross. And after being resurrected, Jesus Christ continues to accompany each of those for whom he has given his life on the cross. It is not enough for him to have done such an immense act of love; keep loving me, with constant acts of giving to me. This is how he has shown me his personal love, his being "my shepherd."
