Reflection:

What a feeling of relief when our burdens are lifted! Jesus knows how to get our attention! In today's Gospel, this is His promise. "Come to Me, all of you who labor and are burdened, and I will give you rest." What a message of hope for a world and our country as we pass through the losses and threats of the Covid-19 virus. What a message of Love so needed for our country as we face our original sin of over 400 years of racism and brutality.

Does Jesus tell us we can find rest? Well, yes, with the stipulation that we heed Jesus' Word: "Come to Me," first and foremost. And we then probably think that we have an immediate and sure answer to our prayer. Well, yes, but not at first in my experience. There are stepping stones to this place of rest. Too often, it's more like "give it a rest." For a person like myself—a fix-it person, an advocate, and opinionated, giving it a rest is not so easy and does not come first hand. I have to be led into that place of "giving it a rest." This makes all the sense in the world. God needs time to work things through without me getting in the way. I'm reminded of a patient in my pastoral care counseling who held a truth that said, "Do your best, and let God do the rest."

"All United one in the Love of God"
"Todos Unidos UNO en el Amor de Dios"
