Reflection:

Important times are approaching when hyperactivity or consumerism is unleashed and we can take care of austerity, simplicity and sharing. What attitudes do you propose to live to prepare this Christmas? What do you contribute to your community, to your family, to your work and to all the environments in which you develop, psychosis of winning the lottery, wasting valuable gifts or promoting manual things made with love and imagination, to caress the life of the others? Do you compete in decorating, giving, surprising, inviting, decorating, celebrating, or do you do it with simplicity and naturalness, involving others in the task of making these holidays a time of encounter and joy? It would be advisable to pray as a family or community, and share the interior joy of waiting for the Lord and for the new Christmas, which could be the only, the best, the most authentic of all those you have lived, to make room in your life for the God.
